

Caw! Caw!

There's only 33 days left until opening day at Indiana Beach. There are so many things in store for the 2009 season, including the best thing of all...NO GENERAL ADMISSION! That's right, Indiana Beach is turning back it's clock and reinstating Free General Admission. That means anyone who visits the park will have access to walk to the boardwalk, eat at their favorite food location, shop the retail stores without having to pay a fee! Anyone who wants to take part in the rides, games, or other attractions can do so for an additional cost.

Indiana Beach has also launched it's new look on the website! Here you can find a listing of all the Special Events taking place all summer long, including the return of the Friday and Saturday night Fireworks show on Lake Shafer. Along with many of the returning events, Indiana Beach will be hosting a Cinco de Mayo Event Opening Weekend on May 2 & 3! Make sure you bring your fiesta flare for all the exciting events including, a Taco Eating Contest at the world's Famous Taco Shoppe, or try one of the fajitas at one of the themed food carts on the boardwalk. You'll have to visit with Dora and Diego who will be making a visit at Kiddyland, and Salsa to the beats of a Mariachi Band as they play throughout the park!

This is just one of the many events Indiana Beach will be hosting this 2009 season. Make sure you visit the Events page on the website at www.indianabeach.com for a complete listing of all the events taking place this summer.

-IB Crow